Gear up for World Cup

FIFA Calgary soccer fans might want to go to bed early tonight as the 2010 FIFA World Cup kicks off early tomorrow.

After the opening ceremonies at 7 a.m., host nation South Africa takes on Mexico to open soccer's greatest showcase one hour later.

The second Group A match, at 12:30 p.m., sees Uruguay take on France — two former champions that barely made it to the tournament after each won a playoff game to qualify.

2 dead after fiery crash

Vehicle fleeing from police slams Renfrew house

PETER MCCARTNEY
for Metro Calgary

Two men are dead after their white Jeep careened into a Renfrew house and caught fire at around 1:30 a.m. yesterday.

Police say the Jeep, driven by a man with a suspended licence, crashed into the house on the corner of 10th Street and Child Avenue shortly after a K-9 unit tried to pull it over.

Blair White, acting superintendent for the Calgary Police Service, said

Const. Jens Lind turned on his lights after running the plates on the suspicious vehicle with two males in it, and finding it was registered to a female.

This, combined with the area and time of night, caused him to investigate.

Once Lind flipped on his lights the car sped away; he then turned off his lights and begun searching the area, said Roy Fitzpatrick, assistant director with ASIRT, the unit that investigates incidents involving officers. He added that there was no evidence of a pursuit.

Three minutes later Lind came upon the scene, where the fire was extinguished, according to police.

"With disregard for his own safety he approached the vehicle, but was unable to free the passenger," said White.

One man was pronounced dead at the scene. The other died in hospital.

Sable Sweetgrass, who videotaped the moments after the crash from her doorstep across the street, told a different story from police.

"It was obvious to me that (Lind) was in pursuit of this person because as soon as I came out, he was right there," said Sweetgrass.

"It just seemed like the police officer was being very casual about it. He didn't seem to be rushing or anything."

She said she heard someone calling for help from inside the vehicle.

A 52-year old woman inside the house was taken to hospital with minor injuries.

No more six-digit plates

JESSICA PICHE
for Metro Calgary

Alberta's growing population has finally outnumbered possible provincial licence plate combinations.

Since 1983, standard Alberta licence plates have been printed with a unique six-character combination in an ABC-123 configuration. New plates will now be printed with an additional numeral.

"We simply ran out of combinations," said Cam Traynor, Service Alberta spokesperson. "The introduction of seven-character plates with the additional fourth number will serve us for many years to come."

The "Wild Rose Country" plate design will remain the same despite earlier considerations for a revamp.

"Albertans were supportive of a design change. However, it would have cost $15 million to replace all the plates," said Traynor.

Alberta licence plates won't see a redesign, but they'll add another numeral in order to create enough combinations to last at least 10 years or more.

Cam Traynor, Service Alberta

The redesign was held back due to a change in the government's spending priorities, said Traynor. "Once funding comes in, a redesign may be possible."

Not all possible combinations of the original six-character plates have been used. During the 2004 mad cow disease outbreak, Alberta recalled many plates beginning with the letters BSE.

Other plates with letter combinations difficult to read, such as II, were also left unused.

Rumour of the possible return of the front vehicle plates are false, to the relief of many Albertans. Eighty per cent of drivers are opposed to front tags, according to a government survey.

The new plate combinations are expected to last for at least 10 years to 20 years.

Veteran and vanity plate designs and availability will remain the same.

Assault charge laid on Calgary police officer, says official

POLICING Charges against a Calgary police officer were laid yesterday regarding an on-duty incident that took place more than two years ago.

The officer, whose name has not been released, has been accused of hitting a man in the face and is charged with one count of assault causing bodily harm, said acting Supt. Kathy Grant.

The incident took place on May 28, 2008, when the officer was

Grant would not elaborate on what caused the altercation but said the Edmonton Crown Prosecutor's Office reviewed the complaint and advised the charge against the nine-year veteran.

Defence attorney Mark Takada said due to the mounting disclosure against Tatyana Granada, who is facing charges in the high-profile food-tampering incidents at the Oakridge Calgary Co-Op, he doesn't believe the trial will begin until at least January. Police, media get on their trikes and ride for diabetes

Sgt. Mark Colcy knows what his partner went through while caring for his wife and daughter, both of whom have Type 1 diabetes, so he and dozens of other police and local media celebrities' made raising money to fight the disease fun on Tuesday.

"It's great to see everyone out and having fun and to show the police officers in a different light having fun and raising important money for an important charity," he said.

ENVIRONMENT Premier Ed Stelmach is defending the environmental improvements to the oil sands after Bellingham, Wash., became the first municipality to officially take action against them.

On Monday night, Bellingham's city council

"[We're] improving every day on how to develop those resources," said Stelmach.

"I know we have a lot more work to do there, but we'll continue to do that."

Bellingham cited the carbon and other environmental impacts from the tar sands, including "permanent damage to Canada's ... ecosystems, destruction of scarce freshwater and generation of toxic waste."

"It's time for our governments to drop PR campaigns and face the growing market concerns" said Nikki Skuce, a spokesperson for environmental group ForestEthics.

School official: Victims had intervened in fight

ANDREAS MORSE
Metro Canada

Police continue to investigate a fight near a high school in northeast Edmonton Tuesday that left two Archbishop O'Leary students with minor stab wounds and another man with serious facial injuries.

Edmonton Catholic Schools spokesperson Lori Nagy said the two O'Leary students were not part of the original fight but ended up trying to intervene.

"They went to a fight they heard was going to happen and unfortunately became involved," she said at the school yesterday.

"Luckily their injuries are minor and they will be fine."

Nagy said the school board is working with police on the investigation and the principal of the school has sent a letter home to parents to inform them of the incident.

"The students unfortunately were there and became involved and I think that alone is a really good lesson on what can happen," she said. "I think it's a concern that teens increasingly use weapons to solve problems."

Police spokesperson Dean Parthenis said at about 4 p.m. Tuesday, the two students, aged 17 and 18, went to an area just east of Northmount Hall on 92 Street and 140 Avenue to watch a fight between other unidentified people.

"At some point the two victims became involved in an altercation with two suspects and a short time later the 17-year-old was stabbed in the back, the 18-year-old was stabbed once in the leg and there was another 21-year-old male who was pepper-sprayed in the face and assaulted and suffered facial injuries," Parthenis said. "Investigators have a tentative idea of who the suspects might be, but nothing has been officially verified yet."

Parthenis said investigators are still working on possible leads but no one has been charged at this time.

"We are passionate about music education and having music lessons readily accessible to all families, so we thought this would be a great idea," Steele-Gittel said, adding the site matches people from coast to coast.

"It's been a really big hit so far, especially in the Calgary area."

Musiclesonmatch.com launched last month and has already proven popular. Steele-Gittel expects more

"We were so happy with the amazing teachers on the site; it's definitely surpassed our expectations in the quality department. These are the cream of the crop."

COMMUNITY OUTREACH Calgary Police Service and two local musicians have teamed up to create a song and a video showcasing CPS's Power Play Program.

The Power Play Program allows Calgary youth with cultural or financial barriers to play hockey, said Const. Rayn Boyko.

"Many of the kids that come out to the program are from countries where police are to be avoided, so we're trying to break down those barriers," she said.

CPS has created a video featuring an exclusive song called Something New written by local artists Leora Raivich and Ishag Ahmed.

"I've lived there in Africa and I know how it is," said Ahmed.

"It's a great way for the Calgary police and Calgary hockey to attract those teens and help them."

The two wrote and produced the song in just 10 days, said Raivich.

"We're pretty stoked, especially knowing that this is going out for a good cause to help kids in the community."

Revealed: Elusive secrets of autism

The elusive secrets of autism were laid bare in a wide-ranging landmark report yesterday.

The largest-ever attempt to compare the DNA of individuals with autism to people without the condition shows a substantial number of rare genetic changes are involved in the development of the disease.

The scientists behind the effort — published online yesterday by the journal Nature — said the work identifies dozens of new genes involved in autism.

The pattern that

"Most individuals with autism are probably genetically quite unique."

emerges is that the genetic causes of autism are likely far more complex than scientists would have hoped.

And it dashes hopes that a small number of genetic changes might be responsible for the condition.

Senior investigator Steve Scherer, a leading genetics expert at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, said: "Our research findings point to the fact that genetic variations that we discovered are actually rare in frequency, meaning most individuals with autism are probably genetically quite unique, each having their own genetic form of autism."

He likened it to each individual having a genetic fingerprint for his or her own version of autism.

The study involved 1,500 families across North America and Europe.

'Torture' files rounded up in Afghan dragnet

The Canadian military has started collecting paperwork stashed inside metal shipping containers at Kandahar Airfield that could shed light on whether its commanders turned over detainees to Afghan authorities without weighing the risk of torture.

A military team of four has arrived at the base from Canada to complete the arduous task of retrieving thousands of highly sensitive documents that detail the transfer of detainees from Canadian custody.

"It's not a document hunt," said Lt.-Col. Shane Gifford.

"We know where all the documents are. It's not looking for something that fell behind the chairs or something."

The files are the subject of intense controversy in Canada.

The Military Police Complaints Commission has asked the Department of National Defence to disclose all documents on detainees, including detainee transfer orders in Kandahar.

But the federal government says those files are beyond the commission's mandate.

"The goal is 30 days."

Lt.-Col. Shane Gifford

Lawyers filed an application with the Federal Court that seeks to overrule the commission's request.

Military officials in Kandahar said the application has not stalled the retrieval of the documents.

The collection team is expected to have them ready to be shipped to Ottawa in about a month, Gifford said. "The goal is 30 days." THE CANADIAN PRESS

G20 Toronto police say they have contacted a man who bought a large amount of a potential bomb-making fertilizer at a store not far from where the G20 summit will be held.

Tories beat the budget blues

POLITICS Stephen Harper's minority Conservatives have passed their fifth consecutive federal budget with the tacit support of the Liberal opposition.

The 2010 budget bill sailed through the Commons by a vote of 138-126, with 30 Liberal MPs absent to ensure the budget survived — along with the government.

NDP and Bloc Québécois members voted against.

The massive, 900-page piece of legislation now goes to the Senate where it may get a rougher ride.

"Oil is still flowing into the Gulf of Mexico, yet the Liberals helped the Conservatives adopt a budget bill that hands responsibility for environmental assessments to the industry-friendly National Energy Board," said NDP Leader Jack Layton.

Making it up as they go along

Professor Peter Lutz is listed in BP's 2009 response plan for a Gulf of Mexico oil spill as a wildlife expert. He died in 2005.

Under the heading "sensitive biological resources," the plan lists marine mammals including walrus, sea otters, sea lions and seals. None lives anywhere near the Gulf.

The names and phone numbers of several Texas A&M University marine life specialists are wrong. So are the numbers for marine mammal stranding network offices in Louisiana and Florida, which no longer exist.

BP's 582-page regional spill plan for the Gulf, and its 52-page, site-specific plan for the Deepwater Horizon rig are riddled with omissions and glaring errors, according to an Associated Press analysis that details how BP officials have been essentially making it up as they go along. The lengthy plans approved by the U.S. government last year before BP drilled its ill-fated well understate the dangers posed by an uncontrolled leak and overstate the company's preparedness.

"BP Exploration and Production Inc. has the capability to respond, to the maximum extent practicable, to a worst case discharge, or a substantial threat of such a discharge, resulting from the activities proposed in our Exploration Plan," the oil giant stated in its Deepwater Horizon plan.

News in brief

NETHERLANDS The pro-business VVD party claimed victory in Dutch elections early Thursday, as voters continued a Europe-wide shift to the political right and rewarded parties that pledged to cut spending and discourage immigration. "It appears as if for the first time in our history the VVD has become the largest party in the Netherlands," would-be prime minister Mark Rutte told chanting supporters in the town of Scheveningen. With 96.5 per cent of votes counted, Rutte's party led left-leaning Labor by 31 seats to 30 in the 150-seat parliament, a result that spelled possibly months of haggling between the two to fashion a coalition. Voters also gave a major boost to the anti-Islam Freedom Party of Geert Wilders, which scored its best-ever finish with 24 seats.

The hotel just south of the World Trade Center site celebrated its grand opening yesterday. Did the FBI unwittingly bankroll Peru murder?

The FBI thought it was closing in on Joran Van der Sloot in the notorious Natalee Holloway missing-teenager case, and he was paid $25,000 US in a sting operation. But when the agency delayed his arrest to help build a murder case, he took the money and headed for Peru, where authorities say he now has confessed to killing a different young woman.

The investigation of van der Sloot in the Alabama teenager's case simply was not far enough along to have had him arrested, the FBI and the U.S. attorney's office in Birmingham, Alabama, said yesterday.

U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Patrick Leahy sent a letter to FBI Director Robert

Mueller and requested an explanation of "exactly what happened in this case and the basis for all actions taken by the FBI."

U.S. officials and a private investigator said the work on Holloway's disappearance was revived in April when van der Sloot reached out to someone close to Holloway's mother and requested $250,000 in exchange for disclosing the location of the young woman's body on the island of Aruba.

The U.S. officials said yesterday that Holloway's mother contacted authorities in Alabama, and the FBI set a sting operation in motion targeting van der Sloot.

He has since been charged in Alabama with trying to extort money from the family. He was the last person seen with Holloway before she vanished during a high school graduation trip to the Dutch Caribbean island on May 30, 2005. He was arrested but has been released twice for lack of evidence.

He is being held in Peru in connection with the May 30 killing of 21-year-old Stephany Flores.

Man allegedly held daughter, fathered 7 children with her

BRAZIL A man in a remote fishing village kept his daughter imprisoned for 12 years, raped her repeatedly and had seven children with her, police said yesterday.

The man is also accused of abusing a young girl he had with his daughter.

Police allege that Jose Agostinho Pereira, 54, kept his daughter, now 28, under virtual house arrest in a two-room, thatched-roof hut near a tiny fishing village in northeastern Brazil.

An officer who aided in the arrest said the home was located in such a remote, jungle area that the only way to reach it was by using canoes.

Authorities said the children appeared to suffer from malnutrition and could barely communicate with others. Most were unclothed.

The alleged abuse began when Pereira's wife left him in 1998, said police in-

"None of them were allowed to leave the house. None can read, they can barely communicate with other people," said Paiva.

It was last year in Austria that Josef Fritzl was found guilty of locking his daughter in a dungeon for 24 years and fathering seven children with her.

THE GREATEST OUTDOOR SHOW ON EARTH

All U.K. immigrants must now speak English

BRITAIN Love may have its own language — but that's not good enough for the British government.

It wants English, too. Starting this fall, the spouse of a citizen who is coming from outside the European Union and wants to live in Britain will have to prove he or she has a basic command of English.

The move, announced yesterday by the new Conservative government of Prime Minister David Cameron, comes as countries across Europe tighten their rules on immigration amid rising unemployment rates and concerns about the ability of newcomers to integrate.

The famously tolerant Netherlands was holding an election Wednesday in which a far-right party that wants to ban all immigration from nonwestern countries has a shot at doubling its seats in Parliament.

In Britain, the government is casting the new policy as an effort to promote integration — not to keep out foreigners.

"I believe being able to speak English should be a prerequisite for anyone who wants to settle here," Home Secretary Theresa May said in a statement. "The new English requirement for spouses will help promote integration, remove cultural barriers and protect public services."

Couples already have to meet other criteria, like proving their marriage is genuine and demonstrating they can support themselves financially.

In comparison, Citizenship and Immigration Canada spokeswoman Kelli Fraser said Canada only requires economic immigrants to prove their language ability. Language is not a selection factor for any other immigration category, including those applying in the family class.

Man confesses to years-old murder

WISCONSIN An ailing con man pleaded guilty yesterday to killing a teenage couple in Wisconsin nearly 30 years ago and agreed to plead guilty to two murders in the state of Ohio he had earlier confessed to.

Edward W. Edwards, 76, unexpectedly entered the guilty pleas during a hearing that was supposed to determine which jail he would live in while awaiting trial.

Edwards pleaded guilty to killing 19-year-old sweethearts Tim Hack and Kelly Drew in 1980. He will be sentenced at a later date to mandatory life prison terms for each murder. His attorney, Jeffery De La Rosa, said Edwards didn't make the final decision on signing the deal until an hour before the hearing. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Google wants help fighting censorship

Google Inc.'s top lawyer said yesterday that the world's leading search engine is asking the U.S. and European governments to press China to lift Internet censorship, describing it as an unfair barrier to free trade.

David Drummond told reporters that western states should defend the free trade in information with the same kind of rules that they use to complain of China's below-cost sale of products.

He said government talks are "the only way that it's going to change, that this tide of censorship or this rising censorship is going to be arrested."

The company sparred with Chinese leaders earlier this year when it stopped self-censoring its search results in line with Chinese rules after it said Chinese hackers had tried to plunder its software coding and hijack the Gmail accounts of human rights activists.

"Censorship, in addition to being a human rights problem, is a trade barrier."

David Drummond, Google lawyer

Since late March, Google has been redirecting search requests from mainland China to Hong Kong, which doesn't have the same restrictions.

"The cyber attack was sort of the final straw because we felt that it was increasingly hard to do business there in accordance with our values," Drummond said, describing the company as in danger of becoming "part of the same apparatus" of Chinese state censorship.

"Censorship, in addition to being a human rights problem, is a trade barrier."

Charges filed in France against alleged polygamist

LAW A French judge has filed preliminary charges of fraud against an Algerian-born man who spoke out after his companion, wearing a head-to-toe Muslim veil, was cited for driving while her vision was hindered.

The preliminary charges against Lies Hebbadj, including fraud, didn't stem directly from the traffic citation but from an investigation that followed.

After his companion was cited in April for driving while wearing apparel that hindered her vision, Hebbadj spoke out publicly in her defence.

It then emerged that he was suspected of polygamy, with France's interior minister suggesting he had four wives.

The judge did not file preliminary polygamy charges against Hebbadj, but charged him with collecting too much money in state aid to single parents.

Public prosecutor Xavier Ronsin said Hebbadj's wife and three companions would also be hit with preliminary charges of "social aid fraud." French news reports said that Hebbadj had 14 children with the four women.

Interior Minister Brice Hortefeux responded quickly to yesterday's preliminary charges, insisting that "the definition of polygamy in the penal code is not adapted to today's reality."

In a statement, Hortefeux insisted that in reality Hebbadj was living in a polygamous state, even if he wasn't legally married to all four women. He called for France's polygamy laws to be revamped and called for Hebbadj to be stripped of his nationality.

Friendship underrated

Relating

metronews.ca/collins

Friendship gets less glory and attention than other relationships. It's too easy, too steady and self-supporting. Maybe it works too well to be taken seriously.

The "friend zone" is shorthand for the second-rate vortex for where love affairs lacking mutuality or sexual chemistry go to die.

Male friendship in particular is sold short. It's entirely expected for you to say you love your kids, your country, friggin' hockey, but say that you love your buddy and an adolescent snickering can still be heard (this would also be the response of many of my dearest friends to such a declaration, so fair is fair.)

The bond with a friend, which Ralph Waldo Emerson lauded both as "one before whom I may think aloud" and one with whom "you can afford to be stupid," is often trivialized with awful words like "bromance." "I love you" must be followed by the neutralizing "man," and ideally shouldn't be delivered before the third round of drinks.

There's none of this pussyfooting in Christopher Hitchens' new memoir, Hitch 22, excerpted in this month's Vanity Fair, which contains warm, funny words about his decades of friendship with Martin Amis, who himself says, "My friendship with the Hitch has always been perfectly cloudless. It is a love whose month is ever May."

No bromance this, though the magazine, perhaps embarrassed, sells it on the cover with the glib, juvenile cover line, "Hitchens (hearts) Martin Amis."

I've always been lucky with my friendships. Their quantity, quality and duration outstrip my due, not the least because I'm pretty rotten at keeping in touch. My emails are slow but sincere. My silences are unforgivably long.

But every reunion has a way of erasing the months or years that have passed. We pick up where we left off because we never really left off, and we can now burn each other all the better over retreating hair and spawning chins. (This ball-breaking is the beautiful thing they try to recreate, usually so horribly, with celebrity roasts. When real friends do it, it's actually stingingly funny.)

In June, as the summer's short supply of weekends begins to disappear into various commitments, I become, through the cruel limitations of time, an even less worthy, more diluted friend.

Visits with those whose schedules are the tightest, one stranded for long stretches in New Zealand, another serving in Afghanistan, get priority for practical reasons, but the triage is always insufficient. I'm always going to miss good times with my favourite people, and there's nothing to say about it but I love you (man.)

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

MERGER TALKS

Worth mentioning

Because Internet dating sites offer slim pickings

An Ohio woman spent three days in jail for calling the police emergency line five times seeking a husband.

The dispatcher was flabbergasted by the requests and asked Audrey Scott, of Alliance, "You need to get a husband?"

The 57-year-old Scott responded, "Yes." Told she could face arrest for misusing the emergency call line, Scott responded, "Let's do it."

Scott was convicted last week of improper use of the emergency system and was sentenced to the three days in jail, which she had already served since her arrest, according to The Review newspaper.

Seven other days were suspended if she stays out of trouble for a year.

After her release, Scott blamed the case on alcohol. There is no phone listing for Scott, who could not be reached for additional comment yesterday.

Open letter to women of Sex and the City

FourthWave

Canice Leung

metronews.ca/fourthwave

Dear Carrie, Samantha, Miranda and Charlotte,

We fell out of touch for a few years, shortly before Sex and the City bit the dust in 2004. We all got pretty busy — I know people can change in six years, but it's like I don't even know you anymore ... Flying off to Abu Dhabi, joking about Lawrence of my Labia, drunkenly karaoke singing "I Am Woman," and meeting locals who throw off their black abayas to reveal fabulous designer gowns underneath.

Really? In parts of the UAE, it's legal for men to beat their wives, and women have been charged with illegal sex after reporting rape! Being Woman in Abu Dhabi is no all-expenses paid trip for the average gal.

You aren't the self-assured, sometimes neurotic, sharp-tongued, emotionally sensitive New Yorkers I once knew. You've turned into a four-headed beast that spews crass stereotypes and it's time for an intervention.

I want you to remember who you once were; I want the old Carrie, Samantha, Miranda and Charlotte back.

You're collectively the

Sarah Jessica Parker, a.k.a. Carrie

Freudian four-way dissection of the modern, Western woman — the romantic, the nymph, the workaholic, and the insecure ditz — which is what endears you to all of us. You are us.

The show's not without problems; you live in demographically monochromatic upper class Manhattan, and your problems (men, where to have drinks, the lineup for weekend brunch) are definitely first world.

It's not feminist, but it has surprised me. Consider the era that ushered you in: The show launched alongside the careers of underage, over-sexed pop starlets. While Dubya was waging his abstinence-only education program, you were crude but frank about the realities of female sexuality, aging, workaholicism and the concept of beauty.

Sure, all of you at one point or another slept with the wrong guy, or forgot to use protection, but there were never recriminations that any of you were slutty, flawed, or bad. Seen in the context of its time, SATC was groundbreaking.

Like muscle cars, explosions, Clint Eastwood and Steve McQueen are to men, your world was ours to escape to, 40 minutes at a time. Can't we just go back to all that? I miss you girls, I really do.

Yours always,
Canice

Scotiabank StartRight® helps newcomers feel at home

Manisha and Sudhir Bagde chose to come to Canada in spite of being told by a former neighbour from Mumbai that things weren't too encouraging here right now.

Their gung-ho attitude and positive thinking underlines every statement they make.

"We came here to provide a better future for our kids. I am convinced that we will make it in Canada," says Sudhir.

An architect trained with a Master's from JJ College of Architecture, Mumbai, Sudhir was Vice-President of a very well-known construction group. He researched job opportunities in Canada and had lined up a confirmed job in Halifax before moving.

"An agent responded to my online application; we had several discussions over the phone. After a few interviews with the HR people at the firm, I had my first job offer. Unfortunately, the project was shelved, but nobody's to blame for it," says an ever-positive Sudhir. "I gained interview opportunities and experience in the process. They say they will contact me when the project gets off the ground."

Manisha, with a Masters in Fine Arts also from JJ School of Arts, ran her own design studio in Mumbai. In Toronto, she is enjoying the weather. She feels absolutely at home and finds Canadians very welcoming.

"Right now both of us are looking for jobs, but things will fall into place soon," she says confidently.

Scotiabank StartRight® gives newcomers a headstart

Pankaj Mehra, Director India and South Asia Markets at Scotiabank, tells the Bagdes, "Water finds its own level. Your positive energy is bound to be reflected in every interaction of yours."

Manisha seizes the word positive. "Everyone here is so positive! We went to Scotiabank and we felt we were with people who cared and would help."

Sudhir had met a Scotiabank representative in Mumbai who told him about the Scotiabank StartRight® Program for newcomers to Canada and the bank's partnership with HDFC Bank in India.

"I said, 'Good idea!'" laughs Sudhir. "The banking formalities were all completed while I was in India. I had an account in Canada the day I landed." A minor glitch was soon ironed out. The Bagdes had opened a joint account, but Manisha stayed back in India for their daughter to complete her school exams and joined Sudhir a few weeks later.

"Pankaj helped me sort things out. Intesar Khan, the Branch Manager at the time at Highway 10 and Ray Lawson in Brampton, opened a new account for me that I could operate until Manisha joined me."

"Everyone at Scotiabank is so positive and helpful."

"Scotiabank is committed to helping newcomers to Canada settle in well," says Rania Llewellyn, Vice-President, Multicultural Banking. "Newcomers like the Bagdes are such an asset to the country."

The Bagdes admit to wondering how their new neighbours would be and if the kids would settle in. Happily, they have positive things to report on both fronts. Their daughter Kruti, 17, stayed in touch with friends in India by e-mail while exploring her new neighbourhood over the summer holidays. Their son Kalpak, 12, is immersed in books he brings home from the Mississauga Public Library.

Sudhir has now become a Certified Project Manager (PMP) and working towards LEED accreditation, while extensively networking with professionals in his area.

He recounts an amusing incident. "I had to fill out a form and a lady asked me to spell my name. BAGDE, I said. BADGE, she wrote."

"How's that for Canadian experience? Maybe this 'Badge' will improve my chances!"

Oilsands to drive major growth

Report predicts 50 per cent spike in crude oil production over the next 15 years

Canadian crude oil production will jump more than 50 per cent in the next 15 years, driven by expansion in the Alberta oilsands, according to a new report.

The Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers predicted yesterday that total crude oil production will grow from 2.8 million barrels a day this year to 4.3 million barrels a day by 2025.

This growth will be led by the oilsands, which will contribute 3.5 million barrels a day — or 81 per cent of total crude production — by 2025, compared to 1.5 million barrels a day or 54 per cent of total production this year.

"While the economic downturn in 2009 saw many projects deferred, a stabilizing investment climate, more robust commodity prices and market demand for Canadian crude have provided the foundation for several projects to return to active development," said Greg Stringham, vice-president of markets and

European crisis affects demand: OPEC

OPEC says Europe's debt crisis and an oversupply of crude in the market are weighing heavily on oil demand in the second half of the year. In its latest monthly report released yesterday, the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries held its world oil demand growth forecast largely unchanged at 940,000 barrels per day in 2010. The bloc, which supplies almost 35 per cent of the world's oil, says oil's recent price drop appears linked to Europe's debt crisis and a cooling in China's economic growth.

oilsands at CAPP.

CAPP added that new technologies are being implemented in challenging conventional oil reservoirs, and these will enable more crude to be produced than was possible in the past.

"Canada's oil and gas industry continues to develop and implement new technologies to better address the challenges of producing oil from more difficult reserves and continuing to reduce environmental impacts," Stringham said.

CAPP's forecast is based on an annual survey of producers and only includes projects currently in operation or under construction.

Imperial Oil Ltd., Suncor

Energy Inc., EnCana Corp. and Petro-Canada, a division of Suncor, are all planning major expansions to their oilsands operations.

PROFITS Canadian companies saw their profitability outlook weaken in May after a strong post-recession recovery, and will likely see a modest drop in the second half of the year, according to Conference Board of Canada. A leading indicator that tracks profits across Canada's various industries fell 0.4 percentage points from April, the second month in a row it has registered such a drop, the think-tank said yesterday.

APPROVAL The federal government has given its approval for U.S. financier Carl Icahn to acquire Lions Gate Entertainment Corp., as he fights to gain majority control of the Canadian-U.S. film and TV company. Heritage Minister James Moore said yesterday that the Icahn Group has made several assurances — including that the company will maintain jobs in Canada. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Consumers complain like never before: Ombudsman

REPORT More complaints were filed by consumers against Canada's financial industry last year than ever recorded before, the Ombudsman for Banking Services and Investments reports.

The national dispute resolution service says it opened 900 cases in 2009, a 48 per cent increase over the previous year.

That's more than triple the number of cases filed over the last three years, the ombudsman says.

He notes that recently more filings have been made against the investment industry, instead of the banks, driven partly by the global economic downturn, which ravaged stock markets.

The ombudsman's office can investigate complaints from clients of financial institutions, including banks, investment dealers, trust companies, mutual fund dealers, credit unions and scholarship trust plans.

Its services are free to consumers, and it can recommend compensation in amounts up to $350,000.

Chicago's wait is over

Overtime goal gives Blackhawks first Cup since 1961

(Chicago wins series 4-2)

Blackhawks 4 Flyers 3 (OT)

There was no red light, just Blackhawks flying over the boards in celebration.

Sticks and helmets were thrown, scattered all over the ice and still no signal for a goal.

After a brief review, there was no dispute — the Chicago Blackhawks were the Stanley Cup champions.

Patrick Kane sneaked the puck past Michael Leighton 4:10 into overtime and stunned Philadelphia to lift the Blackhawks to a 4-3 overtime win in Game 6 last night for their first championship since 1961.

No one but the Blackhawks appeared to know what was going on for a few frozen moments. Kane and his linemates seemed the only players on the ice who knew the puck found the side of the net. The goal light never went on, but that didn't stop most of the Blackhawks from storming the ice and mobbing each other in celebration.

The review was short and Kane will go down as scoring one of the biggest winners in team history.

"I was just hoping to God it was just an actual goal," said captain Jonathan Toews, the Conn Smythe Trophy winner as playoff MVP. "They came back hard in the third and we just stuck with it."

Kane raised his arms right away and skated behind the net, knowing the goal was good. While the Chicago Blackhawks right-winger Patrick Kane jumps into the arms of goalie Antti Niemi last night after Kane scored the overtime winner to beat Philadelphia 4-3 and capture the Stanley Cup.

Flyers sat on the bench in stunned silence with confused looks, the Blackhawks began to celebrate in their own end around goaltender Antti Niemi.

"I knew it went in right away," Kane said. "What a feeling. I can't believe it. We just won the Stanley Cup. I can't believe this just happened ... It's something you dream about, scoring the final goal in the Stanley Cup finals."

Before reaching the group hug, Kane stooped to pick up some loose ice shavings — looking like a mischievous kid on Christmas ready to throw a snowball in the backyard.

"There's so many great things about winning a Stanley Cup. This is it," Toews said. "This is the best feeling you can ever get. I just can't believe it's happened."

Sports in brief

NFL The NFL Players Association filed a complaint yesterday claiming the league deprived players of potential revenue when it re-negotiated its contracts with television networks. The complaint alleges the NFL structured the contracts so it would be guaranteed money even if there is a lockout in 2011 — while not maximizing revenue from other seasons when the league would have to share that income with players.

ESPN A former ESPN production assistant whose affair with broadcaster Steve Phillips led to their firings has filed a lawsuit against the sports network saying it defamed her. The lawsuit by 23-year-old Brooke Hundley, says ESPN defamed her by firing her based on false statements by Phillips and by claiming she had not fully co-operated with its investigation.

Pierce hopes to shake off struggles

The Boston Celtics watched the misery unfold again, a poor performance that was tough to take the first time around.

As video played of Tuesday's 91-84 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers, Tony Allen noticed another audience member, Paul Pierce, wasn't enjoying himself.

Lakers lead series 2-1

n't enjoying himself.

"He seemed pretty upset today in the film session,"

Allen said yesterday. "I just saw his gestures. It kind of looked like he felt he could do more."

Pierce certainly has plenty of room for improvement in Game 4 of the NBA finals tonight.

He made just four shots before tossing in a meaningless layup with 5.1 seconds left and finished with 15 points, two rebounds and two assists.

In Game 2, the Celtics won 103-94 in spite of him as he missed nine of 11 shots and scored just 10 points after leading the team in the regular season with an 18.3 average.

The MVP of the 2008 finals ran into foul trouble on Tuesday, reducing his aggressiveness. Rarely did he drive to the basket, a skill that usually gets him a layup or two free throws. At the video session, Pierce told coach Doc Rivers why. "It's funny," Rivers said. "I said, 'Paul, that's a driving lane. You've got to get to the basket.' His response was, 'I was worried about getting another foul.' It's tough to play that way."

The futility spotlight focused on Ray Allen, who missed all 13 of his shots and finished with two points Tuesday. But he and Pierce got off to equally poor starts, both missing all five of their shots in the first quarter.

"They had an outstretched arm in front of my ball all night," Allen said.

"I just move forward and just focus on getting good rest today and being ready for tomorrow."

For Pierce, being ready means avoiding foul trouble so he can get into an offensive flow.

"When I go out there and I'm in foul trouble, it's difficult, which was the case in Game 3," Pierce said.

"I can do more if (the Celtics) need me to do more. Obviously, I'm going to probably have to do more if we're going to win."

"I'm going to probably have to do more if we're going to win."

South Africa's time to shine

As World Cup arrives, nation revels in road from conflict to celebration

Soccer's stars have converged on South Africa from across the globe, but on the eve of the World Cup, it is the host nation — with all its flaws and all its wonders — that has seized the spotlight.

Crime is rampant, in shantytowns and posh suburbs. An HIV-AIDS epidemic rages. Yet the welcome for the world — from Cape Town to Soweto — couldn't be warmer, or more proud.

Blaring their plastic trumpets, or "vuvuzelas," and displaying their multi-coloured flag on their cars and their homes and themselves, South Africans are embracing this historic moment. It's by far their boldest foray onto the world stage since Nelson Mandela formally ended the apartheid era by winning the presidency in 1994.

"It has unified all South Africa," said Irvin Khoza, chairman of the local organizing committee. "It doesn't matter if you're black or white, or if you're close to the sport or not. Everybody in this country is wearing the flag."

The four-week, 32-team tournament opens tomorrow with South Africa's national squad — a long shot to bookmakers but a favourite to adoring local fans who call it Bafana Bafana — taking on Mexico at Soccer City, the 94,700-seat stadium rising amid old gold mines between Johannesburg and Soweto.

where in Africa, where soccer fever runs deep, and it takes place in a country that for decades was an international sports outcast, boycotted because of its racist policies.

Brazil and Spain are the favourites to win the title. Other popular teams, according to a worldwide survey released this week by Nielsen Media Research, include former champions Argentina, England and Germany — along with the United States, which was picked to win by 46 per cent of North Americans.

Even enigmatic North Korea is here, its unheralded and long shot team qualifying for a World Cup for the first time since 1966 amid a flare-up of tension with its neighbour and fellow tournament entry, South Korea.

A few top stars are absent due to injury, but England's Wayne Rooney is here, as is Portugal's Cristiano Ronaldo. Argentina has arguably the world's best player, Lionel Messi, and the most flamboyant coach, Diego Maradona.

Estimates vary as to how many foreign visitors will come — perhaps 350,000 or 400,000. When ticket sales thrilled. Their elders share the excitement, with extra perspective.

Simon (Ox) Malhangu, who played pro soccer in the 1970s with the Soweto-based Moroka Swallows, was among many world-class stars who never got to play official international matches for his country because of a sports boycott imposed to protest apartheid.

"To be honest with you, we never thought we'd host such a tournament of this magnitude in our lifetime," Malhangu, 58, said in a telephone interview. "We're counting ourselves lucky, as people now approaching their 60s, to be hosting such a great event."

Criticizing the national team has become a sort of national sport in Italy over the past few weeks.

"Whenever a World Cup comes around everyone wants to get in their say. Last time everyone joined in as we moved along, but this time we're not going to allow anyone to jump on the bandwagon," Lippi said.

With midfielder Andrea Pirlo likely to miss the entire group phase due to a left calf injury, Italy is without its most talented player.

"Single players don't win

World Cups. Let's be clear. There are no longer any superstars in Italy, and it's not like anyone I left home would alter the skill aspect," added Lippi, who was criticized for not even considering talented but temperamental forwards Antonio Cassano and Mario Balotelli.

Lippi recalled his team was very nervous before the 2006 opener with Ghana and didn't feel truly confident until its memorable extra-time win over Germany in the semifinals.

Coaches plan different paths to Cup glory

From dour Dunga to the downright eccentric Diego Maradona, the leading coaches at the World Cup are plotting different ways to win the title.

Brazil coach Dunga has upset millions of his countrymen by leaving big stars such as Ronaldinho, Alexandre Pato and Adriano out of a squad he believes needs stability to win a sixth World Cup.

One of the game's all-time greats as a player, Maradona has stunned the soccer world by ignoring hugely experienced defenders Javier Zanetti and Esteban Cambiasso, who showed their top form by helping Inter Milan win the Champions League.

England's Fabio Capello has a technique to get these millionaire stars to do what he wants, to behave smartly and respectfully even at their team hotel where cellphones and flip-flops are banned in public and the players dine together as a team.

"Capello instills fear, like a severe dad," England striker Wayne Rooney said of the England head coach. "He has explained to us how to do everything. He has made us more of a squad. He has worked above all on the tactics, now we can change them every match."

Spain's Vicente Del Bosque knows his side is among the leading favourites, especially with most of the Euro 2008 winning team he inherited from Luis Aragonés still around.

Quiet and happy to stay out of the spotlight, Del Bosque won domestic and European titles with Real Madrid and many neutral football fans in the world would applaud him for a World Cup triumph.

Italian coach defends team from critics who say it's too old

EXPERIENCE Marcello Lippi is getting tired of hearing that Italy's players are too old to win the World Cup again. And he doesn't appreciate the rampant skepticism over his squad — even back home.

Lippi lashed out at Italy's critics at his first chance upon landing in South Africa yesterday, pleading to at least give the team a chance to prove itself.

"Yes, we have old players, but with age comes charisma and the experience of playing in big games. I think we have the right mix of young and old players," Lippi said. "We have nine players from 2006 — that's less than 50 per cent. I've never seen any team that wins the World Cup show up four years later with 23 new players."

While Lippi has kept the likes of 36-year-old Fabio Cannavaro and 33-year-olds Gianluca Zambrotta and Mauro Camoranesi, he has also brought along three 23-year-old defenders — Salvatore Bocchetti, Leonardo Bonucci and Domenico 28 The average age of the Italian squad is 28 years nine months. Ghana is the youngest team, with an average age of 24.

Criscito.

Still, the new players have not proved themselves yet and most analysts are picking Brazil, Spain, Argentina and England as the favourites, with the defending champion hardly ever mentioned.

Uruguay coach Oscar Tabarez named his starting team yesterday for its World Cup opener against France. Defender Mauricio Victorino and midfielder Egidio Arevalo were the surprise picks for Friday's game. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FIFA World Cup

Portugal counting on Ronaldo goals

The World Cup provides a global showcase for soccer's greatest forwards, and if Cristiano Ronaldo wants to reach the status of Pele and Diego Maradona, he must do something he hasn't done for 16 months — score a goal for Portugal.

The tournament in South Africa needs stars like Ronaldo and Argentina's Lionel Messi to produce their skills on the sport's biggest stage, to thrill the billions of spectators watching games on television worldwide.

That means FIFA's 2008 world player of the year will have to break a goal drought stretching back to a friendly game in February 2009, when he scored from the penalty spot against Finland.

In competitive matches, he has not found the net for Portugal since the 2008 European Championship.

"It's not a problem," the Real Madrid player said before the tournament. "I'm saving myself for the World Cup."

The time to deliver on that promise has come as Portugal readies for its June 15 opener against Ivory Coast.

Ronaldo has the ability to set a game alight, which is why Real Madrid paid Manchester United $118 million US for him a year ago.

The Portuguese forward's electrifying bursts of pace, his spellbinding footwork and blistering right-foot shots — which Manchester United fans nicknamed "Ronny rockets" — have brought crowds to their feet at Old Trafford and the Santiago Bernabeu stadium.

Injuries, though, have unsettled Ronaldo's international career. He played in just seven of Portugal's 12 World Cup qualifying matches and, in some games, he was still recovering from injury.

In 73 appearances since his 2003 debut, Ronaldo has scored 22 goals.

Still, Portuguese fans grumble that his inability to reproduce his club form at international level is partly to blame for Portugal's recent below-par results.

Soccer fans will be up at the crack of dawn for the next month to cheer on their teams in the FIFA World Cup, which kicks off tomorrow.

FIFA is estimating that over 2 billion viewers worldwide will be watching the games live. However, the time difference between Calgary and South Africa will separate the true fans from those swept up in the hype.

A game isn't a game without a cold pint — and that goes for the the 5:30 a.m. starts, too. To meet demand of patrons, the Alberta Gaming and Liquor Commission (AGLC) has granted special permission to several restaurants and bars in the city to serve beer with breakfast.

Applications have been received and reviewed, but not all restaurants that requested the opening extension have been granted the extra time. According to AGLC communication officer Vanda Killeen, 31 establishments have been approved. However, the exact days and times doors open will vary.

"Some pubs have only requested early opens for specific game days based on their team of choice," said Killeen.

Restaurant doors can now open as early as 5:30 a.m., with liquor service starting at 8 a.m., two hours earlier than usual.

"Liquor inspections will be stepped up a little to make sure restaurants are only opening early on the days they've applied for," said Killeen. Restaurants are also required to have full meal service available — and they're required to show the game.

Soccer fever hits an all-time high during World Cup years, said Calgary Minor Soccer Association Sport Coordinator Cory Letendre. "There is a boom in registration afterwards all across Canada," he said.

"People want to be a part of the passion and emotion. Everyone wants to be a part of the soccer community."

Although Letendre will be watching the early morning games with his sons from home, he understands the appeal of a dawn pub visit. "People want to get together for the games because they want to join in the excitement."

Mix up some colour coordination by bringing a dose of the outside inside.

Sky blues, grassy greens and sunshine yellows — this is the time to go bold with colour, whether straight up, or in pretty patterns or flirty florals.

Sebastien Fauteux, general merchandising manager for Urban Barn, said it's easy to freshen up an interior for summer.

"A pop of colour really goes a long way," said Fauteux, in town recently from Vancouver. "Don't be scared. Painting a wall can be overwhelming, but you don't have to go that far."

Summer rule No. 1: Keep cool

DecorMoment

Karl Lohnes

metronews.ca/decomoment

Decorated and ventilated properly, a house, apartment or condo can keep cool during the blazing days of summer without the need of having central air. Here are a few practical and decorative ways to keep things cool during the summer:

In your apartment: Install a window air conditioner. A small 10,000-15,000 unit will keep an area of 500-800 square feet cooled down. Use a floor standing fan to re-direct the cool air around the apartment. Check with your building management before purchasing and installing a window air conditioner as they may have regulations to follow.

Left: Using cool colours like white and grey can keep a room looking and feeling cool, but installing a ceiling fan on an upper floor can actually help keep a house cool (right).

Decorating ideas: Choose white blinds and/or a backing on drapes to reflect the sun's rays, and keep drapes closed when hot sun is pouring in; hang bamboo blinds outside to diffuse the hot sunlight that hits the windows.

In your basement apartment: Since cool air falls, you may not need an air conditioner however basements are often humid. Get a dehumidifier to take the water out of the air and the temperature will feel 5-10 degrees cooler; open windows once the outside temperature have dipped below the temperature inside.

Decorating ideas: Apply a frosted film on windows to create privacy but still allow as much light in as possible. Use an exhaust fan while showering allows steam and humidity to escape.

In your townhouse: If you have central air conditioning, close the vents on the main floor to force more air upstairs. As cold air falls, the lower levels will cool down. Use ceiling fans on upper floors to draw air upwards and keeping the cool air from falling. Use your bathroom exhaust fan on top floors to draw out the hot air and pull cool air up.

Decorating ideas: Decorate using light and airy colours like grey, blue and white on upper floors where its always warmer; the cooler it looks the cooler you will feel. Keep all south facing blinds and drapes closed during the day when the sun is the hottest. Rid all upper floors of heavy area carpets which can insulate the heat.

In your sprawled house:

Use an attic fan to blow out hot air that has collected. Install air conditioners on south and east sides of the house; these are the two hottest areas. Plant tall shrubs and trees on the east and west side of the house to help diffuse the hot sun at the beginning and end of the day. Install awnings over the south-facing windows to cut the direct sun.
Decorating ideas: Use fabrics like cotton, linen and bamboo on furniture and bedding, tiled floors are cooler to the foot than carpeting.

High-fashion ambition

Top-earning Victoria's Secret supermodel Doutzen Kroes likes her bread, body and bikini shoots Doutzen Kroes might not fit the mould of a top model.

She's a jeans-and-T-shirt girl. She likes — and eats — bread. She wasn't discovered in a remote place by a famous scout or photographer. And at 25, she has curves that have kept her off a lot of high-fashion runways.

But somehow, none of that matters.

Kroes ranked No. 5 this year on the Forbes list of top-earning models. She's most recognized as a Victoria's Secret Angel, the brand's top tier of models, a spokeswoman for L'Oréal and the former face of Calvin Klein Eternity.

"My life has always been like I'm in a bubble and it's floating and it goes in the right direction," Kroes says. "I don't want to interrupt it."

It was Kroes, a Dutch native, who got the ball — or bubble — rolling. As a teenager, she saw a magazine photo of a model and she thought to herself, "She has beautiful hair, beautiful makeup, a beautiful dress, and I thought I'd like to look like that one day."

Doutzen Kroes (far right) attends Victoria's Secret Models Share Shopping Secrets Of A Supermodel event last month in Los Angeles with other supermodels.

Her sister took photos and Kroes sent them off to a modelling agency in Amsterdam, a place she rarely visited as a self-described "country girl." Kroes' passion until then had been competitive speed skating.

Other than her sister, no one knew about her new high-fashion ambition.

"I didn't tell anybody that I sent the pictures because I'd be embarrassed if I didn't get the job," she says.

Apparently she didn't need to worry with her long blond hair, blue eyes and Brigitte Bardot look. She relocated to New York within a year.

Kroes has a "modern style," describes L'Oréal's international general manager Vianney Derville, who also says the model is

"blessed with an excellent sense of professionalism and a natural elegance."

On most days, you'll still find her in jeans, T-shirt and flat shoes, but she likes stepping it up for a night out. At last month's Costume Institute Gala Benefit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Kroes was the date of designer Zac Posen, wearing a princess-worthy blue gown that they collaborated on. For the Cannes Film Festival a few days later, she wore a glamorous Grecian-style gown with a plunging neckline by Roberto Cavalli.

Earlier this week, she presented the popular-vote award at the Council of Fashion Designers of America Hollywood-style awards show.

Kroes is outspoken about her feminine, curvy figure and how it's cost her jobs. She was a panellist for the CFDA's round-table discussion about too-skinny models and says she hasn't done as much runway work as she'd like because she doesn't always fit the sample size.

"I have to work really hard. My body — I have a voluptuous body. I am not one of those skinny girls. I like to enjoy life," she says.

Christina makes trashy return

Christina Aguilera

Album: Bionic
Label: RCA/Sony
Rating: ****

THE "DIRRRTY" GIRL takes four years off to learn how to become a homebody wife and a nurturing mother, only to return to the recording studio to lay down trashy dance club hedonism like Sex For Breakfast, Morning Dessert, Elastic Love and a particularly flesh-filled track called Desnude. These are fine for what they are, but isn't it time to leave the skank to young yelpers like Ke$ha? Christina's been there, done that. She's got a huge voice — as she proves here on one or two tracks here, most notably Lift Me Up. Maybe she should try putting that voice to better use.

Grace Potter and the Nocturnals

Album: The Grand Bounce
Label: Universal
Rating: ****

FINALLY, A FRESH voice that sings real rock 'n' roll. Forged in the patchouli pyres of the Vermont jamband scene, Grace Potter's vocal delivery is all about the kind of free-flying, eye-popping energy that set San Francisco afire in the '60s. And she's put together the perfect band to back her. No synths here, just plenty of old-style blues rock guitar to complement Potter's searing voice and keyboards. Comparisons, of course, will be made to Joplin. Not quite yet, but we're getting there.

little of the mad-poet indulgences that dominated Downie's two previous efforts. This is an album full of attention-getting guitar riffs and accessible, if not always comprehensible, lyrics. There's plenty of interesting vocal interplay with Julie Doiron throughout, and only occasionally does Downie slide into self-indulgence (closing track Pinned, in particular). This entire project could have easily been the next Hip album. But if Downie needs some new faces to keep the creative flame alive, that's fine too.

Toronto. Their frenetic rock not only won over the city's music establishment, but America's as well. The hype has subsided, and so has the band's boundless energy, but their talent has only matured. Like their previous record, the music is more toned down than their acclaimed EP, but unlike Elephant Shell, this isn't boring. They combine quirky keyboards with jangly blasts of guitar and mid-tempo, Ben Gibbard-ish indie rock. It's all pretty catchy — especially Bambi — and it's nice to see TPC back in their groove.

Band's humour heart of Rush

Rush: Beyond The Lighted Stage

Directors: Sam Dunn, Scott McFadyen
Classification: STC
Rating: G

KAREN BLISS
for Metro Canada

Forty years in the same rock band and there's not an overdose, trashed hotel room or groupie scandal to speak of?

How on earth would directors Scott McFadyen and Sam Dunn make a film about Rush interesting to those who can't recite the lyrics to 2112? Is there something here beyond a typical rock doc? The answer, surprisingly, is yes.

The story doesn't start with the Toronto band's first album in 1974, but goes back to its members' upbringing, schooling, and motivation.

It's about three teenagers — one the son of Holocaust survivors, another of Yugoslavian immigrants — who were fiercely committed to music. All of them —

Rush drummer Neil Peart is seen here in all his percussive glory.

singer-bassist-keyboardist Geddy Lee, guitarist Alex Lifeson and drummer Neil Peart knew what they wanted to do in life — rock out. And not in a slacker, excuse-to-avoid-adult-responsibilities way.

Through rare early footage of Rush playing high schools to "overreaching" sessions in the studio and more current live clips, one sees that Rush never wavered from this pursuit of musical excellence. The trio's progressive hard rock and cerebral lyrics with words you'd sometimes have to look up won millions of dedicated fans.

Screen times

• Rush: Beyond The Lighted Stage screens 7 p.m. at Uptown.

For the film, Trent Reznor, Billy Corgan, Jack Black, Foo Fighters' Taylor Hawkins, Metallica's Kirk Hammett and others gladly spoke of their love for the band, often quoting musical and lyrical passages. Black declares the members "not even human" at one point.

But despite the seriousness of Rush's music and work ethic, the film is filled with humour.

The band members crack joke throughout, from their so-called Down The Tubes tour early in their career to their fashion choices (i.e. Lee's Asian robe phase).

It's the funny stuff that gives a glimpse into their personalities, how they have stayed together all this time, and why Beyond The Lighted Stage is not just a story about musicians.

John Oliver, correspondent on The Daily Show with Jon Stewart, attends the soccer Send Off Series Match between the U.S. and Czech Republic in East Hartford, Conn. last month.

World Cup stint dream come true for Oliver

John Oliver's job on The Daily Show is giving him an English soccer fan's dream: the chance to attend the World Cup — and perhaps more important — taunt the Americans before they take on his national team.

Oliver and producer Tim Greenberg left for South Africa earlier this week to file reports for Jon Stewart's Comedy Central show. Oliver, a soccer fanatic from Birmingham, England, left behind one earlier-filmed report, where he visited the American soccer team before their World Cup opening match with England this weekend. Oliver's report airs Thursday.

"It was a free exchange of opinions as to how the England game would go," Oliver said. "You can probably imagine how that degenerated."

The South African visit is the show's fourth international trip in four summers. Rob Riggle went to Iraq in 2007 and to China for the 2008 Olympics, and Jason Jones went to Iran last year. This year's trip was encouraged by Stewart, a former college soccer player.

Oliver, 32, has become an increasingly valuable member of The Daily Show team during his four years on the job, giving an outsider's often incredulous view of how his host country operates.

The whole concept of sharing plates can be a nightmare of tired burger sliders, sad olives, and inadequate, overpriced portions. Not here; Tango dances to a perfect beat.

Rarely does a salad catch my attention like the bright roasted heirloom beet and apples ($9.50) tossed with fennel seed, white truffle, and alfalfa honey vinaigrette.

Gorgonzola melds beautifully with roasted pears on a flatbread ($9) with vibrant pesto, crunchy pinenuts and sweet vincotto wine reduction.

Five meaty prawns ($10.50) get a crunch from wonton wrappers, and a hint of heat from the mayo spiced with Japanese togarashi.

Turducken skewers ($9) — turkey bacon wrapped around a sliced log of duck and chicken sausage — are creative but a salty, mushy let-down.

All is forgiven with the opulent poutine ($8.50), awash in demi glace and studded with real cheese

Bail for Lindsay doubles after SCRAM violation

AND WORK OFFERS DISAPPEAR Lindsay Lohan's SCRAM alcohol-monitoring bracelet got her in trouble Tuesday with a judge who doubled the actress' bail to $200,000.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Marsha Revel determined Lohan violated the terms of her release after a closed-door meeting with the actress' attorney and a prosecutor. Revel did not detail the violation, but said her decision was made after receiving "results" issued by a court-ordered alcohol monitor.

District Attorney's spokeswoman Shiara Davila-Morales said it was an "alcohol-related violation," but did not have further details.

A source familiar with Lohan's case told The Associated Press that the violation was reported after the Mean Girls star appeared at the MTV Movie Awards on Sunday night.

Lohan was not present in court Tuesday, but several denials of wrongdoing were posted on the actress' Twitter account shortly before and after the hastily called hearing.

Lohan's $200,000 bail was posted less than two hours after the hearing, a move that quashed a bench warrant issued for the actress' arrest by the judge.

Lohan's attorney, Shawn Chapman Holley, issued a statement Tuesday, saying the device indicated the "presence of a small amount of alcohol" on Sunday night.

"Having just received the report, I am not in a position to speak to its accuracy or validity, however Ms. Lohan maintains that she has been in complete compliance with all of the terms of her probation and her bail," Chapman Holley said in a statement.

Maid allegedly steals jewels from Paula Deen

THE NEWS HIT HER LIKE A FROZEN HAM TO THE HEAD Police say a housekeeper stole and tried to pawn thousands of dollars worth of jewelry belonging to Food Network star and celebrity chef Paula Deen.

Savannah-Chatham police tell the Savannah Morning News they went to Deen's Wilmington Island home on May 3 on a report of about $100,000 worth of men's and women's jewelry that had vanished within the past year.

Deen's husband Michael Anthony Groover told police the couple had caught housekeeper 47-year-old Mary Alice White with some jewelry and had fired her.

Authorities charged White on May 5 with theft. They say she was caught trying to pawn a pair of $18,000 earrings at a Savannah pawnshop.

- 1/2 Granny Smith apple, cored and matchstick cut
- 1/4 cup sour cream

with a tight fitting lid, combine sour cream, cider vinegar, 1 teaspoon honey, poppy seeds, lemon zest and juice. Cover with lid and shake until well blended. Pour sour cream mixture over fennel mixture and stir to thoroughly coat.

3. Brush olive oil over salmon, season generously with salt and pepper and transfer to prepared sheet pan.
